

Does your office look like the mailroom during assessment windows?

Printing
&
Distribution
Services

By now, you have finished your Pacing Guides, trained your team on the value of formative assessment, provided professional development on making use of data, and created assessments beautifully mapped to your Pacing Guides.

So, what's next? Oh yes... fight with some software to properly format assessments, get the right assessments in the right classrooms at the right time, and deal with angry school site staff when materials don't arrive on time or aren't delivered in the correct number.

Wait! You're an educator, and you're changing toner cartridges at the last minute in order to reprint a missing box of assessments?

It's time to let Intel-Assess manage printing and distribution so you can get back to educating. Together with one of the nation's leading print and distribution vendors, we have optimized the process of getting the right assessments to the right classroom at the right time – all at a lower cost than doing it yourself.

Let us:

- Professionally print all your assessment materials
- Package your materials by period for each teacher
- Ship each school its teacher packages – or have them sent to a central office for greater security – your choice
- Handle reprints and reshipments
- Do all of this at a price that's less than what your internal services charge

How it works:

- We use data from your SIS to drive the printing needs
- We align the printing schedule with your assessment calendar
- We leverage our integrated business processes management to streamline printing and shipping